Thank you

Tim

Thanks for sending me a copy of your book 'Mass Murder' and the coverups.

These are very serious public safety issues and your informed and science-based advocacy is a valuable contribution.

Paul

“mass murder” and the coverups

Now that the government and others have had time to read and respond to my book, I think it is timely to acknowledge your prompt ‘Thank you’ and concise words about it (see below).

As the Australian government Shadow Minister for Science and Manager of Opposition Business in the House, would you please ask a question of the Prime Minister about the government’s ‘deliberate misinformation’ (‘crying wolf’), with a relatively benign bushfire earlier this year, described on the book’s back cover and detailed on pages 59 to 61, 181, 208 & 326.

Thank you for your further comments.

Happy to consider this for a possible question in question time, albeit we usually have a lot of topics and not nearly enough questions allowed to us to get to all the issues!

Having established extreme bushfires: “...are very serious public safety issues...”, yesterday we completed rewriting our website to assist the government with ten recommendations.

Thanks for your response of September last year (see below).

Following your responses and the relevant events in the US, we have bought our web-site up-to-date with new menu entries titled, Don't Wait and See, Risk 8000 deaths, President Trump and some other changes (firestickestate.com).

If you are not the right person to process these issues, please refer me to the right person. It seems to me that President Trump's: 'no more Fed payments' - the book's primary theme - suggests the Liberal Party's principal donors would appreciate being informed prior to, and not after, the next catastrophic extreme bushfire.
